

Wholesale Forgeries of 1500 Names May Void Petition for Com. Form of Government

Investigation of the petition purporting to contain the names of more than 10,000 legal voters requesting that the proposition of establishing commission form of government for Will County be submitted to the voters, has revealed one of the most conspicuous cases of wholesale forgery ever perpetrated in Will county according to Attorney Joseph Keig, in charge of the investigation.

While the investigation has not yet been completed, it was learned Wednesday night that more than 1,500 forgeries and duplicate names had been discovered on the bulky petition. Circulators of the petition are said to have received two cents a name for each of the alleged signatures.

"Our investigation has shown that the board of supervisors acted prematurely in ordering an election on the proposition of changing our form of our county government," Mr. Keig said last night. "On the basis of facts obtained in checking the names on the petition to date, it is doubtful if the petition contains the required number of legal voters of the county to order an election."

Mr. Keig did not say just what action will be taken as a result of the investigation and the revelation of numerous irregularities. He stated that a decision in this regard would be reached some time next week when investigators had completed their work.

Forgeries, names of deceased persons, fictitious names, and names of persons not of age and those not citizens were found in large numbers on the petition, it is reported.

One circulator of the petition revealed his originality by writing down names of movie stars. On one page the names of Tom Mix and Buck Jones appeared. No namesake of the famous actors could be found at the addresses which appeared on the petition.

The advocates of the 3 commission system for Will County have been finding fault with the present board of supervisors system, but if they want to get their proposition in a crooked way as revealed by the petition what could be expected of them if they got in office? People of Will County don't be deceived. Keep your present system of county government and know you are safe. It does not pay to experiment with a proposition that is backed by dishonest people.

About 20 Mokena people signed the forgery petition, but they signed in good faith. About a dozen Frankfort people also signed this petition. A large number of names of New Lenox people appear on this petition and many of these people claim they never signed the petition.

Organize Will Co., Republican Club

At a meeting of Republicans held Thursday in Joliet, the Will County Republican Club, a permanent republican volunteer workers organization had its inception. This is a club which will marshal in its ranks men and women in the county who espouse the principals and ideals of the republican party and who are anxious to assist actively republican candidates seeking political preferment. The club will work in collaboration with the republican central committee and in harmony with other republican organizations.

The object as stated in the charter, which has been granted by the Secretary of State and which was approved the past week, announces the purpose of the organization to promote the cause of the republican party in general, and to promote and advance the cause of the republican party in Will County, in particular; to promote, encourage and foster a feeling of good fellowship, friendship and good will among members of the organization and among those who identify themselves with the republican party; to aid, advance, encourage and promote the candidacy of all persons seeking election to public office under the banner of the republican party and, wherever it is right and proper so to do, to give special aid, advancement, encouragement and promotion to the candidacy of members of the organization seeking nomination and election to public office under the republican party banner or on the republican party ticket.

The following officers have been elected to direct the destinies of the organization for the ensuing year: President, James C. Bell; vice-president, Conrad J. Wirth; secretary, Gordon Bedford; treasurer, Otto M. Schultz. The organization is now being perfected in all precincts in the county and at a subsequent meeting a member from each precinct in the county will be elected to comprise the Board of Directors.

The officers have been directed to appoint a committee to draft by-laws for the organization and a committee to direct publicity for the club and these appointments will be announced at the next meeting.

Judge Fred R. Adams, chairman of the Republican Central committee, who was present at the meeting, spoke of the high service that such an organization could render the central committee in its campaign activities. He assured the organization of the co-operation and interest of the central committee and himself.

A series of meetings is being arranged for Joliet and the various communities of the county to be held

Political Speeches Enliven Homecoming At Frankfort Sunday

The second annual Frankfort homecoming held in the Frankfort grove last Sunday afternoon and evening was attended by fully 3000 people.

The grove entrance was tastefully decorated with flags and bunting for the occasion and there were booths, games and amusements here and there about the grounds.

The Little German Band played peppy tunes thruout the afternoon and enlivened things.

One of the features of the afternoon was a fast ball game between Mokena and Matteson, resulting in victory for Mokena with a score of 17 to 7.

During the afternoon a report came from the Will County Republican headquarters at Joliet that ex-governor Len Small would reach the grounds and make a short address. This he failed to do however, being held unavoidably by other appointments.

Possibly 2,000 people remained until a late hour looking for Mr. Small and much disappointment was manifested at his non-appearance.

Practically all of the local Democratic and Republican candidates were in attendance and were given an opportunity to speak.

Don C. Hall of Mokena who acted as chairman for the introduction of the Democratic candidates, made a short and eloquent and impassioned appeal for the support of Hoover and Cuytis and for ex-governor Len Small.

The Democrats introduced were: Robert J. Cronin and Michael Henneberry, candidates for state representatives, Al J. Krings, for clerk of the Circuit Court; J. Bert Blackburn, for County Recorder; Joseph T. O'Neill for coroner and Bernard J. Fay for county auditor.

Francis J. Loughran, candidate for state's attorney spoke a few words for James A. Howell, candidate for congress.

In speaking for his own candidacy, Mr. Loughran stressed the point that he is a wet, favors the repeal of the 18th amendment, but that he believes in the enforcement of all laws.

He further pointed out that no citizen of Will County had anything to fear from him if he wished to drink a glass of beer and eat a sandwich with the beer.

Mr. Loughran emphasized the fact that he is a trial lawyer and that he will stamp out all acts of terrorism as have been perpetrated in the eastern part of Will county of late, if he is elected states attorney. He made it clear that he would not temporize with the gangster element, but would do his utmost to drive them out of the county.

The Howell contingent had brought brought their own amplifying system and platform microphone, whereas the other speakers did not.

When it came the turn of the Republicans to come to bat, they were accorded the use of the broadcasting system. Attorney A. H. Krusemark introduced the Republican candidates.

Frank Reed, Republican candidate seeking re-election to congress was the principal Republican speaker. He thanked his Democratic friends for the use of their broadcasting system and then waded in and ripped the Democratic principals to pieces. He said if the Democrats got into power they would tear down the protective tariff with the result that steel could be imported cheaper from Belgium than it could be manufactured for in this country. He pointed out that American labor can not compete with the cheap labor of Europe. He said that the opponents say there are ten million men out of work under the present Republican administration, but that if the Democrats are elected there will be twenty million men out of work. Mr. Reed made a pun on his opponent's name by saying "if the voters did not raise too much 'Howell' he would be reelected."

Attorney Wm. McCabe, Republican candidate for state's attorney also said he would not molest anyone if they wished to drink a glass of beer and eat a sandwich. He also made it plain that he would enforce all the laws and that he has had much experience as a trial lawyer and would be able to handle all cases as public prosecutor.

Paul V. Wunder, candidate for re-election to the office of circuit clerk declared that not 5 cents from his office was withheld from the county and that he nor his clerks did not receive one cent more than the law prescribed and that his office had always turned over a neat surplus to the county treasurer after paying all salaries connected with that office.

Wm. Smith, candidate for recorder, and Tom Sprague, candidate for county auditor and Wm. Zarley, candidate for surveyor, also made brief remarks.

Late in the evening, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill from Downers Grove arrived and was introduced by Mr. in the coming weeks before the election. The first of the meetings outside of the city of Joliet is to be held in Lockport at the American Legion Club rooms at 8 p. m., Monday, October 3. All candidates seeking election on the republican ticket are urged to be present and the public is cordially invited.

AN APPEAL AGAINST KILLING OF BIRDS AND SQUIRRELS

The Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, Garden Department appeal to the residents of Tinley Park and surrounding communities, especially to the Garden Clubs, to use their influence as individuals and with legislation as a means of putting a stop to the ruthless killing of squirrels and birds in the wooded section surrounding this territory. What if the hunting laws do allow the "sportsmanship" of destroying wild life in our lovely woods?

The love of nature, for the pride of "our homeland", for a humane interest in the preserving and conservation of these beauties of the forest, harmless, God given things, protection must be thought of or the song of the bird and the chatter of the squirrel will cease and the forests silent and uninteresting. So few squirrel remain, they have been slaughtered to the extent that we scarcely ever see one. The season for killing birds and squirrel should be closed!

It is a lack of understanding that small boys are allowed guns. It requires more than a game warden and a few nature lovers to change these conditions. Won't you help?

Signed—
Mrs. Wallace B. Combs,
Tinley Park, Illinois.

Hall. Mrs. O'Neill who is a candidate for representative said that Illinois must have a Republican governor. She pointed out the merits of her past record and said she would do her best to further the welfare and the interests of labor and agriculture if she is returned to Springfield.

The festivities closed with a big dance. The day was quite largely given over to political discussions, but with a feeling of good nature and helpfulness permeating the atmosphere. "I'll be seeing you next year" was the genial word at parting.

Orland Park Pastor Resigns; Will Serve In Unique Field

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders, minister of the Orland Park M. E. church resigned his pastorate at the recent official quarterly meeting to take effect October 10th.

He came into this section eight years ago as pastor of the North Community Church. When he assumed the work there the church had only 10 members on the roll and when he left to take up the work at Orland Park there was a membership of sixty people. He began his work at Orland Park six years ago, serving longer than any previous pastor. In that time the membership has increased from 121 to 172 members. His work has not been confined to the church alone as he has a broad interest in the community and the southwest suburban section at large, doing all he could to serve the people regardless of church or creed.

He resigned his pastorate to become minister at large through out the entire section in order that he might be more free to serve all people and carry on his community work. His plans are more or less a unique experiment. For a long time he has felt that he wanted to go out and live among people doing all he can to serve them and live by faith and works. He will have no definite salary or income from any church and will receive only that which comes in from the people he serves as they are lead personally to give. No one will be asked at any time for any material help as it must all come from the freewill offering of interested people.

He will make his residence at the Community Center Foundation which he hopes to develop as a spiritual retreat for all who need help in any way. The purposes of the Community Center is to serve all mankind regardless of faith, color or creed: to help mentally, spiritually, morally or physically. He hopes with the help of interested people to carry out this purpose.

The land for the Foundation was given by Mr. Ernest Warner to serve all people in the Southwest Suburban section. Many picnics, camps and retreats have been held there this summer. It is hoped to increase its usefulness in that way in the future.

Rev. Mr. Sanders has been much interested in the relief and community health work as well as in personal problems of the many people who have come to him for help. He hopes to continue and enlarge on this work, carrying on in the footsteps of the Lord and Master as he tries to serve the people here.

NEW SCHOOL IN LINCOLN ESTATES OPENS MONDAY

The new public school in the Lincoln Estates on the Lincoln highway east of Frankfort has been completed and will open next Monday morning with Mrs. Helga Walker in charge as teacher.

The school building is modern in every way with heating plant, indoor toilets, lockers and in fact all modern conveniences.

The school consists of one room and was started about six weeks ago. Walter H. Baumgartner of Frankfort had the general contract and did a very good job and the community is proud of their new school and justly so.

The building of this school in the present hard times shows what can be done where there is a will and determination. Much credit is due the school board of the Lincoln Estates for their progressive spirit.

When the board was getting ready to receive applications for a teacher, they received 70 applications for the one job, thus showing how many teachers are out of employment.

Tinley Park Concertina Club Live Outfit

The Clarion Concertina Club of Tinley Park which was organized on June 12, 1930 by Ernest Silberhorn and Fred Kasten has marched steadily on to overwhelming success. Originally begun with 12 charter members they now have a total of twenty-seven of which eighteen are active playing members and nine associate members.

The Club has already given nine dances which were all highly successful and established for them a reputation among hundreds of people.

At all affairs given the patrons have thoroughly enjoyed themselves; everyone is merry and they greet each other with a smile and a friendly greeting. Imagine fifteen to eighteen concertinas all playing at the same time! A glorious outpouring of music. A peppy fox-trot, now a beautiful waltz, an old timer to make them step and bring back memories of other days. Then a clap waltz—Mary giggling at Johnny and Widow Hasenpfeffer winking at Farmer Suppenknochen—a prancing march about the floor—hands are clapped and partners changed—then a merry old time waltz. Everyone goes home happy with the feeling that the evening has been well spent.

The next public affair of the Clarion Concertina Club will be a Harvest Dance given at the Saenger Hall in Tinley Park on Saturday, October 1.

The Club invites you, your family and friends. Come out in a bunch. Satisfy your curiosity—have a real good time!

Cash Registers Old

The cash register is probably the most antique and yet in its improved form the most modern device known to commerce. More than 6,000 years ago the ancients used a registering device known as the abacus for the purpose of showing visibly to the buyer and seller the amount purchased. The modern cash register was invented by Jacob Ritty of Dayton, Ohio, patented 1879, it being suggested to him by the dial on a steamship which recorded the number of revolutions of the propeller.

Byzantine Tyrant

Several Byzantine empresses bore the name Irene, the most famous being the wife of the Emperor Leo IV. Originally an orphan from Athens, she married Leo and after his death ruled as regent for her ten-year-old son, Constantine IV. She ruled with a strong hand for ten years and when, her son approaching maturity, she feared to lose the throne, sent him into exile. The young heir's supporters strengthened so the empress had her son captured and brought back to Constantinople, where his eyes were put out by her orders. She reigned five years longer and considered a marriage with Charlemagne. A conspiracy of nobles overthrew her and exiled her to the islands of Lesbos.

"Olympiads"

Doctor Vizetelly writes as follows of the misuse of the word "Olympiad": "The term 'Olympiad' is used erroneously, in modern revivals, to designate the games themselves. The correct form to use is 'the Olympian games' or the 'Olympic games.' Olympiad designates the period of four years between two successive celebrations of the Olympic games. By these intervals the Greeks reckoned time up to A. D. 394. The first of these intervals is taken as dating from the year 776 B. C.

Gran Chaco Known as Land of Death

Where Bolivia, Paraguay and Argentina join on the map of South America lies the Gran Chaco, a steaming, insect-swarming triangle 600 miles by 300 between the Paraguay and Pilcomayo rivers.

Julian Duguid, British explorer, has described the Pilcomayo as "a vast, foul-smelling, oozy stretch of bog with as much movement as an unsqueezed sponge. . . . An Englishman may obtain some insight into the discomfort of penetration into the Chaco if he locks himself into a hothouse, waters the flowers, closes all the windows, and allows a blazing sun to shine through the glass while he rides a stationary bicycle. Ever then he will not be bothered by insects."

The worst insects are ihenni, vicious black flies that hang in dark clouds in the air. There are also poisonous snakes, jaguars and piranhas (carnivorous fish). Despite the dampness, water holes are 15 to 40 miles apart.

This is the land over which Bolivia and Paraguay have squabbled since 1879. Paraguay wants the Chaco because the district is larger than the rest of their country and its jungles contain great growths of the quebracho tree, whose bark yields 30 per cent tannin.—Time Magazine.

Nation's Largest Ranch

The largest singly owned ranch in the United States is the King's ranch, at Kingsville, Texas, which comprises 1,280,000 acres of land. This ranch borders the Gulf of Mexico for 100 miles and more than 100,000 calves are branded on it each season. Kingsville is a town of about 5,000 people and is the center of this vast estate, which is largely supported by the industries of the ranch.—Washington Star.

to PROPERTY OWNERS

TODAY a letter came to my desk that deeply impressed me. It was written by a woman—the mother in a typical American family. Her little home had been saved from foreclosure by a coat of new paint, for which a part of their meager savings had been paid.

Those few gallons of fresh paint had so revived the appearance and enhanced the value of the property that the mortgagee had consented to renew the loan . . . and the little home was saved.

I could not help thinking of the thousands of homes and buildings that are shabby and unattractive today due to several years of neglected painting; of the millions of home owners who, because of reduced incomes and enforced economy, have been obliged to sacrifice painting for taxes, interest, assessments, to say nothing of food, clothing, heat and other essentials of comfort and health.

You have seen these paint-starved houses and buildings, as have I. They are everywhere about you. Perhaps your home is included.

Do you understand what they signify? Do you realize what will happen to wood or metal that is literally naked of paint if these houses and buildings face the attack of another season of rain, snow, ice, and frost?

Never in the history of our country has the situation been paralleled. Property owners face an added burden of expense amounting to millions of dollars for repairs and replacements next spring.

And the crisis, in my opinion, will be reached this coming winter when paint of four, five, and even six years exposure to the weather will be unable to resist the elements—when badly weathered wood and metal will be easy prey for rot, rust and decay.

Today the big question facing thousands of property owners is plain. It is "paint or pay." Either you must invest a little this fall in new paint or you must take the risk of paying many times the cost of paint to repair the damage done by rot, rust and decay this winter.

Even at the sacrifice of other things, have your house or buildings completely repainted now. No investment you can make will pay better dividends. And nothing you can buy will make you and your family feel so uplifted and cheerful.

If you cannot arrange to do a complete repainting job now, at least give the badly weathered places a coat or two of protecting paint.

Look especially, to the window sills, thresholds, outdoor porches and steps; the joints of porch railings and palings; the bases of pillars; the edges of eaves; the roof; the gutters and down spouts. These are the vital spots where water lodges—where ice and frost settle—where rot and rust attack first.

A few dollars' worth of good paint, applied now, will protect these vital spots—will tide you over this crucial winter. And it will probably save you a much greater expense for repairs and replacements next spring and summer.

Under existing conditions, you may be tempted to buy a cheap paint because of its low price. I hope you will not make this costly mistake.

Even on sound lumber, inferior paint is a poor bargain. But on weathered wood, which is very porous, such paint is worse than useless. It gives you a false feeling of security and leaves you without protection.

Prices of well-known, established brands of paint are now the lowest in fifteen years. Enough good, dependable paint can be purchased for a few dollars to protect all the badly weathered surfaces on your building.

Again I repeat, do a complete job this fall if you can. But at least do the vital exposed places before it is "too late."

Don't Let Bankrupt Cook County Run the State

There is a serious situation developing downstate, and the rest of the state of Illinois, due to the fact that Chicago fails and refuses to pay her taxes.

The voters of the state should by this time realize that Mayor Cermak's committee "pulled the wool" last spring when the legislature authorized $18,750,000 for relief funds thru the sale of anticipation warrants, 94 per cent of which Chicago received and spent.

With Chicago again knocking at the door for an additional $36,000,000, it's time for the voters of Illinois to recognize the fact that Chicago literally is after—not only our pocketbook, but the shirt off our back.

Chicago and Cook County are in the hands of crooks and grafters and the more money that they can get from the state and federal government the more flows into grafters' pockets. Chicago and Cook County must not get another cent of aid from the state. Let the crooks and grafters and the millionaires of Chicago do something. Let them dig down in their own pockets and help their poor. All this talk about helping Chicago's poor is the bunk for darn little do the poor get from the money that is being borrowed.

Let Chicago and Cook County pay their taxes like the rest of the honest people of Illinois are doing and they will not have to be begging for money all the time. It is not fair to the rest of the people of the state to keep helping Chicago, while the rich devils of that city are allowed to get from the state all they can and deliberately refuse to pay taxes.

Chicago and Cook County have made enough raids on the state treasury and the only way to stop these raids is not to let a Chicago man head the state government.

Chicago has only selfish motives and we must not let Chicago rule the state or else we will all be broke.

Chicago and Cook County has no more credit now than a street corner bum and if Illinois keeps handing the state money to Chicago, the state will eventually find itself in the same fix.

It will be a battle and election day November 8, will be the turning point in this battle which will be waged between Chicago's candidate Horner and our downstate candidate, Len Small.

Which candidate you personally prefer means little just now. This is no time for partisan politics; there's too much at stake. But it IS the time for the voters of the rest of the state to fight for the protection of our own interests.

Do the rich try to help straighten things out? No they won't even pay their taxes and still they have the brass to expect the rest of the state to help relieve the suffering and misery they themselves create.

We must not have a Chicago man for Governor of Illinois.

The good people of Illinois must not let bankrupt Cook County dominate Illinois. Keep your shirt on, don't get panicky and when it comes to national, state and county tickets let us vote for the Republican candidates. Vote right on November 8, and you will have no regrets afterward. Keep Cook County out of the state crib.

Let the politicians and rich men of Chicago return to honesty and they will find that they have plenty money to pay all their debts without being a bunch of beggars and asking the poor and small home owners of the rest of the state to assume the heavy tax burden.

R. I. To Celebrate 80th Anniversary With Cent a Mile Rate Beginning October 8th

The Rock Island Railroad has adopted a novel and, from the standpoint of the public, a practical plan of observance of their 80th anniversary which occurs on October 10. Announcement is made thru the passenger traffic department that on October 8, only, the Rock Island will offer a rate of approximately one cent a mile for the round trip between all points on the system, good for return trip until midnight of October 12, tickets to be honored on all trains, including the Golden State Limited and Rocky Mountain Limited, not only in coaches but in sleeping and parlor cars as well on payment of Pullman charges, with the usual half-fare for children. The announcement offers as features a preview of the Chicago Century of Progress; family reunions; special shopping days in all towns along the railroad under the supervision of local chambers of commerce, etc.

The anniversary also will be featured on the railroad's dining cars and eating houses throughout the system. President Gorman has addressed a letter to all employees, urging them to make united effort to attract attention of the public to the Rock Island's 80th anniversary observance.

The Rock Island Railroad ran its first train between Chicago and Joliet on October 10, 1852 and was the first railroad to cross the Mississippi River, bridging that stream between Rock Island and Davenport in 1855. Later this structure attracted national attention when Abraham Lincoln, as an attorney, defended the railroad against the river interests in the maintenance of the bridge. By 1862 the Rock Island had increased its mileage from 40 miles to 434 miles; 1872 to 1288 miles; 1882 to 2218 miles; 1892 to 3537 miles; 1902 to 5370 miles; 1912 to 7100 miles; 1922 to 8096 miles and 1932 to 8353 miles, serving fourteen western states. In 1931 the Rock Island completed one of the largest railroad construction projects in the middle west in building a short line between Trenton and Kansas City, Missouri, a distance of 83 miles. The same year a new line was re-constructed between Dallas and Galveston, Texas, thus giving the Rock Island a direct seaboard connection on the Gulf.

L. M. Allen, Vice-President and Passenger Traffic Manager, in commenting on the one-cent a mile 80th anniversary rate, said:

"We hope that this low rate not alone will attract attention to the Rock Island Lines anniversary but, likewise, will help to lead the way back to better times. We are applying the rate to Pullman passengers as well as to coach passengers, in order that all our patrons may benefit equally. We believe this is an unusual opportunity to take a social or business trip at little expense. We offer it as a friendly gesture on our 80th Anniversary."

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. Church will sponsor a chicken supper Friday evening, October 7th at the church basement. After supper a comedy play entitled "Frank Glenn's Wife" with seven characters given by the Epworth League.

The Frankfort Woman's Community Club met in the home of Mrs. Edward Warning last Thursday afternoon at two o'clock after a two months vacation to resume its business and social hour.

Mrs. Frank J. Kohlhausen presided. The meeting opened with the pledge to the flag after which the program chairman, Mrs. Frankie Tinker took charge. The following program was given: School Day Song Mrs. Kohlhausen; papers on preparing the child for School or College, Mrs. Vollrath; "How General Pershing Looks at War and Depression", Mrs. John M. Clark; "A Dry Warnings A Dry", Mrs. George Heisner; "Youth and Depression", and "Gypsyed", Mrs. Alfred Zechlin; "What Women Are in Politics", Mrs. Walter Pfaff; "Vital Issues of 1932" Mrs. Peter Folkers; "Words Frequently Mispronounced", Mrs. George Andrew; "The End of a Perfect Summer", Mrs. Fred Heusner.

A motion was made that Mrs. Geo. Andrew act as garden chairman for the club. The ballots on "What I Would Like to See Done in this Community" were read and a discussion followed. Mrs. Kohlhausen read "Ten Commandments for Frankfort". There were 13 members and two visitors present at this meeting. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. William Lankenau. Mrs. Edward Vollrath will be program chairman for October.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cheney had as their guests last Sunday, Mr. Cheney's sister and brother-in-law, and their daughter from Chicago.

Facts About the Telephone

Radio telephone service has been inaugurated between Sydney in Australia and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

The longest single transoceanic telephone call, in point of time, took place about a year ago. It was between New York and Paris, and the conversation lasted for an hour and 50 minutes.

Washington, D. C., is connected by direct telephone circuits to some 70 points in all parts of the country, including St. Louis, Chicago, Atlanta, Cleveland, Boston, Detroit and Albany. Between New York and Washington there are 65 direct circuits.

The more than 665,000 American Telephone and Telegraph Company stockholders represent a cross section of the American people, including laborers of every sort, farmers, housewives, stenographers, clerks, teachers, physicians and others, as well as bankers and capitalists.

Telephone service has been inaugurated between the cities of Encarnacion in Paraguay, and Posadas in Argentina, and in the near future full connection between the telephone systems of the two countries is expected to be completed. Telephone service has also been established between the central and northern cities of Chile and Valdivia in southern Chile.

Mr. Bennett has umpired 75 games during the season and is well liked for his fairness in deciding knotty game problems.

A large number of Mokena people attended the Frankfort homecoming Sunday afternoon and evening.

Frank Clevenger and family moved Saturday into the home of the late Miss Minnie Scheer. He has been residing in the Robert Marks cottage.

In line with cuts made in prices in other lines, the Mokena Barbershop located in the Blue Store building have made cuts in the price of shaves and haircuts as outlined in their ad, appearing elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Wachter entertained a number of friends Saturday evening in their home in honor of their daughter Evelyn's 16th birthday. Games and dancing were the diversions of the evening. Refreshments were served.

The final chapter of the 70th anniversary celebration of the St. John Evangelical church of Mokena took place last Friday night when a fine program was presented by the Young People's League and the Ladies Aid Society.

A very clever playlet "The Old Family Album" was acted in a very realistic manner. As the leaves of the album were turned the picture the actors were supposed to be looking at were acted out on the stage. Styles of long ago were shown and some of them were indeed mirth provoking. The pictures acted out ranged from the costum worn by hired girl to that of a wedding couple. In the grand finale all the characters portrayed appeared on the stage together.

A play "Bread" was a very true to life production, showing how people often seek for the things that are not needed and it also showed the evil effect of the gambling habit on young men.

Another play "Light the Highway for Christ" vividly outlined the indifference of the world of today when it comes to furthering the work of the kingdom of Christ, but it also showed that a few of the loyal souls still make it possible for the church to carry on the great work of the Master. It was a very fitting climax to the 70th anniversary commemorating the work of the church in Mokena.

There were a number of musical selections and songs. Leon Tonn sang a very pleasing solo.

We must not forget to mention a comedy sketch which enlivened the program, this skit being by a colored parson whose wisecracks caused gales of laughter. The "parson" was none other than Frank Clevenger of the News-Bulletin staff.

Candy was sold between the acts.

$816,000 Taxes

Remain Unpaid
In Will County

Slightly more than $816,000 of Will County's 1931 tax bill was still owing the county treasurer on Wednesday, just three weeks away from the annual tax sales scheduled for October 12.

Herbert R. Jones, treasurer, announced he had collected $3,443,600.34 out of the total bill of approximately $4,260,000. Collections total 80.8 of the amount due, with 19.2 per cent owing.

Some rush of taxpayers is expected on October 10 and 11, the two days before delinquent property goes on the block, but the treasurer said the amount of property in the tax sale is certain to be high, with few buyers.

Point to Penalties
The treasurer will take the delinquent property lists into county court on Monday, October 3, to secure tax judgements. Those owing taxes may pay up, however, any time between now and the moment their property is called for sale October 12.

If there are few buyers, thousands of dollars will be saved the taxpayers. Buyers are entitled to charge 12 per cent against the total tax and penalty each six months for two years after which there are additional charges. A taxpayer redeeming his property from a buyer thus will pay a heavy charge.

County Assesses 10 Per Cent
If the property cannot be sold and is taken by the county on forfeiture, the county assesses only 10 per cent against the face value of the tax, exclusive of the 1 per cent a month penalties for delinquency which have already been added to the bill.

Taxes were payable this year in two installments. Those who have not paid their first installment, due April 30, will owe six one per cent monthly penalties by the time of the tax sales. Those who did not pay their second installments, due July 31, will owe three per cent.

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1116 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny."

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset bowels. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully."

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way.

Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

Find Records of

Stern Greek Law

Two pieces of pottery on which votes were inscribed which sent Aristides and Themistocles, Greek political and military leaders, into temporary exiles 240 years ago have been found in the ancient market place at Athens, Greece.

Citizens of Athens during the Fifth century B. C., were privileged under the constitution of the city to meet in public assembly and vote for the temporary banishment of any of the citizenry. If as many as 6,000 votes were cast in the ballot, the citizen receiving the largest number was exiled for ten years but not deprived of the enjoyment of his property.

At least eight Athenian leaders are known to have been ostracized, but votes cast in the ballots have only been found for four of the proceedings.

The above mentioned "ostrakon," Greek term for the ballots so used, which was cast against Aristides is the first of its kind ever discovered but the one with the name of Themistocles is the second found. Ostraca have now been found for the votes against Megacles in 487 B. C., Xanthippos, father of Pericles in 485 B. C., Aristides in 483 B. C., and Themistocles in 471 B. C.

Period of Depression

Worried Walt Whitman

Back in 1857 Walt Whitman was worrying about the depression, and the "wild thyme among the banks," and unemployment. He wrote an editorial about it for the Brooklyn Daily Times, which the Golden Book Magazine quotes:

"For the land has been shaken as by an earthquake, and the foundations of industry are dried, the arm of the worker is palsied, the cunning hand is motionless, and the hum and stir of a busy commerce are changed to the dejected silence of a day of national fasting and humiliation."

"Already, it is computed, more than 15,000 laboring people, who live, and help still more numerous thousands to live, by their toil, are thrown out of employment in the metropolis alone."

Bermudas Not Coral

The popular supposition that the Bermudas are formed of coral has been exploded in the latest book of Dr. William Beebe, "Nonsuch: Land of Water." Although "living coral, in small and large heads, is indeed abundant on the submerged reefs" of Bermuda, says Doctor Beebe, it is only a "vener of encrusted life." Bermuda is really the peak of a long extinct volcanic mountain which rose from the sea floor; the alternating periods of raised and lowered ocean levels, due to the Ice Ages, alternately exposed and submerged large parts of the mountain and made possible the accumulation of crumbled shells and wind-blown sand.

"I couldn't have done half so much if it hadn't been for the doctor," Shad answered.

"It's a good thing for a boy to know how to pick out his friends," Bumpy declared.

Saturday morning Shad went up to the Dam for the mail and needed provisions. He received a letter from Colonel Blake which said:

"My dear boy: I have some good news. You look for me Sunday about one o'clock at Brown's Cove for another dinner with you and Bumpy. Tell him that I have not forgotten the Elysium of peace and joy I found under his roof. Go and buy a good fat turkey and whatever else you may need and charge the cost to me. Don't worry about the 'Commentaries.' You are young yet for that kind of food."

Fowls were every day coming down from the hills to market. Shad found one to his liking at Smithers' store. That done, he went to the doctor's house. The learned man in his great coonskin coat stood by his cutter at the door. He was about to begin his rounds in the country. He called the boy aside and said:

"The young woman is getting better. She has promised to commit to me important revelations. I may get them on my next visit. Say nothing of this to any one. I don't want her to be harried by lawyers. She is not yet out of danger. A moment of undue excitement might be fatal to her and to the hope I have of serving justice. We must be patient."

With that the doctor shook the boy's hand, got into his waiting cutter and drove away.

Shad returned to the store and, with a well-filled basket in one hand and a kerosene can in the other, set out for Brown's cove. He had intended to invite Bony down to dinner but with Colonel Blake coming for a talk his young friend would be in the way. However, the prospect of seeing his beloved chief allayed his disappointment.

Bumpy was elated by the colonel's compliment and the prospect of having the distinguished lawyer at his table again. "Talk about 'Elysium'! That's a long jump ahead of me, but I'm a-goin' to cook him a turkey that'll make the hair grow on his bald head."

Bumpy had a peculiar way of storing his meat in winter. There was a pulley in the roof-beam under the overhang outside the front door. The turkey, well wrapped in cheese cloth and fast to the end of a cord, was hauled up to the peak, where it hung through the night beyond the reach of coons or foxes.

After supper that night they sat under the evening lamp and went on with the adventures of Pip in the humble home of Joe Gargery until bedtime.

Next morning Bumpy prepared the turkey for the oven, stuffing it with sage dressing and basting its breast and sides with strips of well-cured bacon. When the oven was judged to be hot enough the panned turkey was shoved into it and the doors closed. At that moment he began to look solemn and refused to talk or to allow any interference in the matter of keeping the fire right.

"Now don't talk to me none," he would say. "This job has got to be done right. You run down to Warner's and get a pint o' cream. Hurry up."

Shad returned with the pitcher of cream.

"Now set the table and keep an eye out for Colonel Blake," Bumpy commanded. "I don't want to be took by surprise. If he don't come on time we'll hang him without a trial."

The table set, Shad stood by the window watching the trail. The turkey was hauled out of the oven. Bumpy peeled his potatoes. He put them in the spider and mashed and stirred them, adding cream and butter and salt and pepper with a cunning hand.

"Here he comes!" the boy called. "Throw open them doors—quick." Bumpy commanded. "There's a leetle too much dinner in the air o' this room."

He shoved his turkey into the cooled oven and closed its doors to protect it from the draft.

"Hello!" the colonel shouted as he came in. "I hope that the dinner is as ready as I am."

"We was scared for fear it would be too ready," Bumpy answered. "A good dinner loses its temper if it has to wait. It gets kind o' disagreeable."

The old man stirred the fire a little and put his coffee on the stove. "Watch it now and don't let it bile," he said to Shad. "I'm goin' to git some cider fer the colonel that has a razor edge on it."

He was especially careful in the making of coffee with a fixed rule as to quantities and temperature. The second it began to bubble the pot was set in a pan of hot water, there to remain until it was served, but never long. It was a beverage to be remembered.

Shad and Colonel Blake sat down at the table. Proudly Bumpy stood at its head between them and carved the turkey. What a fragrance and flavor were in the tender flesh of the bird and the mashed potatoes! The coffee was a joy.

They spent a delightful hour at the table. The turkey eaten, Bumpy brought on a pumpkin pie.

"It's a surprise," he said. "I made it yesterday while Shad was away. A wedge o' that will finish the job."

"That will require another cup of coffee," said the colonel. He ate his pie and added: "You could do a good business in our town as a caterer. I'll give you twenty dollars to come and cook our Christmas dinner for us."

"My clothes ain't fit fer goin' out in company."

"I've got that all fixed," the colonel went on. "You and Bony are to go down to Ashfield and get a complete outfit at my expense. You shall have a credit of fifty dollars at the store. See that you spend all of it. Don't scrimp."

"It's liberal," said Bumpy.

With a smiling face he began to pick up the dishes. The colonel lighted his cigar. When the dishes were washed and put away the old man excused himself as usual and went out to cut wood.

The lawyer began his story.

"Shad, we have been sitting at table with the most remarkable character I have known. I have been over to Burlington to see old Colonel Grimes of whom one day Bumpy spoke, perhaps inadvertently. The colonel reports that William Brown was the best and bravest soldier in his regiment; that he had told Lincoln of Brown's heroic fighting at Gettysburg and that the President had said that he would be glad to see the young soldier at the White House. Grimes told me that Bumpy refused to go for fear that he would miss a battle."

"The first thing of importance that I have to communicate to you is this: Bumpy is not the liar that he is supposed to be in these parts. He has probably been telling the truth. It is a fact that a man who has the habit of drinking too much ruins his credit among the people who know him. He was getting no pension. Therefore many assumed that his tales of heroic adventure were made out of whole cloth. The world we live in is rather harsh and uncharitable."

"I guess that Bony and I have been a little like that ourselves," Shad answered with a twinge of remorse.

"It was natural that you should fall in with the popular opinion. The thing I sought most in my trip to Burlington was the private history of this singular man. Grimes told me where he was born and where he married the woman whose portrait is on the wall yonder. She came of a good family. I went to the little town in the mountains. I got the information I wanted. They lived there for years after they were married. Brown had a sawmill. One child was born to them after their marriage—a girl with dark eyes and hair. She would be about twenty-one years old now. The mother died when the child was eleven. It seemed to break the man's heart. He took to drinking and became a nuisance to his family. He left the girl with relatives and came west to Ashfield with this remarkable bird which had been his wife's pet. He went to work in a big sawmill. The girl was a bit headstrong. Three years ago she ran away. Word came to them in a week or so that she was with her father. Now there you are. It is altogether likely that the unfortunate girl who worked in the store at South Bolton is his daughter."

"Why doesn't Bumpy claim her?" Shad asked.

"She is handsome and rather proud. I take it," the colonel went on. "He was a drunkard and more or less despised. She was ashamed of him. My theory is that they had a quarrel and agreed to live apart. I think that she was engaged to some one of means and apparent respectability, in whose identity we, as the state's officers, are deeply interested. Was it Royce, and if so why has he not married her? We shall know soon. The inevitable consequences are closing in on the criminal. I hope to see the young woman tomorrow."

"Don't try to do it—not yet," Shad urged. "I have good reason for asking you to wait."

The colonel sat smoking in a moment of silence.

"I think that I understand you," he said. "I know of no reason why we should be in a hurry."

"Did you get any help from Algire?" Shad asked.

"None as yet. The detectives have taken him to Chicago. With my help they captured John O'Brien, Jr., his confederate, at Brockville. They have evidence for a prompt conviction and the charge will be murder in the first degree. I think that he will loosen up soon. By the way, the reward has come. Save for a few expenses I am going to give it to you."

Shad's face began to redden.

"To me?" he asked.

"To you. It will give you a liberal education and a start in the world when that is done."

Shad had grown very serious. His eyes were a trifle moist when he said: "I can't see what I've done to get all that money."

"For a boy you've done pretty well. Three times your life has been in danger. You're a good boy and I want to help you along."

"I won't take it unless I can do what I want to with it. I've thought it all over."

"What do you wish to do with it?" "Give it to Bumpy Brown."

"My boy, the plan is a credit to you," the lawyer answered. "I expected that some like idea would come to your mind, knowing you as I do. Let me make a suggestion. At present Bumpy would not need so much. If it should be necessary later we could help him. Let's put half of the sum out at interest and give him the income from it. Use the remainder for your education. If you wished to help Bony to get a year or two of schooling you could do it."

Shad was quick to say: "I'd like to do that."

"I suggest that you put five hundred dollars in the St. Lawrence County bank to Bony's credit to be used for clothes and board and also tuition in the Canton union school. Later, if advisable, you could do more for him."

Shad rose from his chair. "It's grand," he said as he went and looked out of the window at the old man who was splitting wood.

"Converse has written me a letter. He told me how when he woke you up one day on the shore of the Oswegatchie you rubbed your eyes and asked: 'Is God here?' You were born into a new world that day. I'm not much of a preacher but I'd say that God is here. A man who has been pursuing criminals as long as I have is sure to get that opinion."

"I guess you're right," the boy answered.

"He lifteth up the poor from the dust," the colonel quoted as he came and stood by the boy. "It is a great sentence from the greatest of all the law books."

Bumpy had finished his work and was getting ready to come in.

"Poor old man!" the boy exclaimed. "I've got just one more thing to say about him," the colonel remarked, as he stood looking out of the window.

"Grimes told me that Sergeant Brown would never apply for a pension although clearly entitled to it. He's growing into quite a considerable figure of a man. I must be off."

The day was near its end. He put on his arctics and his overcoat and added:

"We'll have a great Christmas day."

At that moment there was a rap at the front door. The doctor's stableman entered. He said to Shad: "If you please, sir, Doctor Gorse wishes to talk with you this evening. I can take you up with me and bring you back. The horse is hitched out on the road."

"I'll join you there in a few minutes."

The boy turned to Colonel Blake and said: "Something has happened. Maybe we'll get light on our mystery."

Colonel Blake made his acknowledgments to Bumpy, who had just come in, and Shad announced that he was going up to the Dam for an hour or two. In a moment the lawyer and the boy set out on the trail.

The boy parted with his friend on the road where the latter's team was waiting. Shad got in with the doctor's driver. He had begun to feel grown up. Was he not now a person of some importance? The colonel had seemed to have that opinion. Shad had written an essay on the common law. It was full of resounding words. Still it was a creditable effort brightened with characteristic humor.

"If he dares to read it he'll find out that I'm no child," the boy said to himself. "Maybe I'll get him pawing over the dictionary."

At the Dam he found a letter from Ruth Blake. It was a pretty letter, in which she said:

"Sometimes I think that you do not care whether I write to you or not. Sometimes I think that you hate girls. There are many pretty girls here who would like to know you. I think that you should learn how to dance and you ought to go to the parties."

The letter filled him with a shining happiness.

"I guess that I've been pretty mean to her," he said to himself.

Mastery of India Won at Battle of Plassey

Great Britain's control over India may be said to date from the time of Robert Clive, who in 1744, at the age of eighteen, was sent from England to be a clerk for the East India company. He soon gave up the pen for the sword and became a great military genius. The old Indian empire of the Great Moguls had fallen into the hands of provincial viceroys and in the fight for supremacy Clive aided certain of these against others backed by the French. His great victory of Plassey, in June, 1757, with 3,200 men opposed to 50,000, determined the struggle. In 1773, the three provinces of Madras, Bombay and Bengal were placed under the administration of a governor-general, and Warren Hastings, the first governor-general, laid the foundations of the present administration of India. After the Indian mutiny of 1857, the direct sovereignty of India was transferred from the East India company to the crown and on January 1, 1877, Queen Victoria was proclaimed empress of India.

Dire Work of Plague

A single epidemic of plague in Russia in 1709 killed more than 150,000 people.

Oldest Assembly

The oldest assembly in the world is thought to be the Welsh bardic congress, the Eisteddfod.

Lesson for October 2

THE CHRISTIAN'S DEVOTIONAL LIFE

GOLDEN TEXT—But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him be glory now and for ever.

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:5-15; Daniel 6:10; II Timothy 3:14-17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Talking to God. JUNIOR TOPIC—What Real Prayer Is.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Christian's Devotional Life. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Means of Christian Growth.

The Christian's growth is by means of his devotional life. It requires the symmetrical development of his understanding and heart. Bible study and prayer go hand in hand. The believer's affections need proper direction and exercise.

1. The Christian's Prayer Life (Matt. 6:5-15).

In Christ's teaching in this passage on prayer we note:

1. False prayer (vv. 5-7). This consists:

a. In one praying to be seen and heard of men (v. 5). Many prayers uttered in public are false, for the supreme consideration is what the people think rather than what God thinks. Men who thus pray get a reward but not from God.

b. In using vain repetitions (vv. 7, 8). This does not mean that we should ask but once for the thing desired, for we have examples of Christ and Paul praying three times for the same thing (Matt. 26:39-46; II Cor. 12:7, 8); but rather that the use of meaningless repetitions, reiterations of empty sentences be avoided.

2. True prayer (v. 6). Real prayer is communion of the child of God with his heavenly Father. Life for its fullest development needs both solitude and companionship. God, our Creator, knew what our natures require. Therefore, he commands both public and private prayer (Heb. 10:25; Matt. 6:6).

3. The model prayer (vv. 9-13). This was given in response to the disciples' request that the Lord would teach them to pray (Luke 11:1).

a. A right relationship—"Our Father" (v. 9). Only those who have become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ can pray aright.

b. A right attitude—"Hallowed be thy name" (vv. 9, 10). When one realizes that he has been delivered from the power of darkness and translated into the kingdom of his dear Son (Col. 1:13) by being a child of God, he cannot help pouring out his soul in gratitude and praise, intensely longing for the kingdom, the righteous rule of Christ on the earth.

c. A right spirit (vv. 11-13). This spirit involves

(1) Trust which looks to God for the supply of daily need. We are dependent upon him for our daily food. With all man's boasted progress he cannot make a harvest.

(2) The spirit of love which results in forgiveness of others. God will not listen to the prayers of one who has an unforgiving spirit.

(3) That of holiness which moves one to pray and not to be led into temptation and moves him to long to be delivered from the Evil One.

(4) Regular prayer (Dan. 6:10). Though prohibited by royal decree from asking a petition from any god or man except the king, Daniel did not depart from his regular custom of prayer to God three times a day.

II. The Christian's Bible Study (II Tim. 3:14-17).

This scripture exhibits the value of the Holy Scriptures. Devotional life undirected by the Scriptures will develop in a wrong direction. The affections need to be disciplined through the understanding.

1. The Scriptures able to make one wise unto salvation (v. 15). Salvation is in Christ alone. It is secured through faith in his finished work on the cross. True wisdom leads to Christ crucified since "there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12), "and without shedding of blood is no remission" (Heb. 9:22).

2. The Scriptures discipline the life (vv. 16, 17). In the Scriptures doctrine is set forth, the standard of conduct which is absolutely needed. The only place to find God's standard of life is in his Holy Word. It not only exhibits the divine standard, but it improves; that is, refutes error. The way to deal with error is not denunciation, but the positive presentation of truth. Then, too, it corrects; that is, sets straight many of the dislocations of personal and social conduct. The Word of God not only sets straight, but instructs in righteousness and equips for service.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

If you expect to get to heaven you must go in that direction.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER RABBIT SEES THINGS HAPPEN

PETER RABBIT sat on the bank of the Laughing Brook staring across at a little hole near the top of the big sandbank opposite. Billy Mink had just vanished in that hole and Peter knew why. He knew that that hole was the entrance to the home of Rattles the Kingfisher, and he knew that somewhere back beyond that entrance was a nest, and in it were the babies of Rattles. He knew, too, that it was for those babies that Billy Mink had entered that hole in the sandbank, that Billy meant to make a dinner of them.

Tears were in Peter's eyes as he stared across at that little hole, for there was nothing he could do to save those babies. He didn't want to stay, and yet somehow he couldn't make up his mind to go. He knew just how dreadfully Rattles would feel when he returned and found that home empty, and it made his heart ache. So he sat staring at the hole in the bank across the Laughing Brook and wishing with all his might that there had been some way for him to save those baby kingfishers.

Suddenly he noticed sand begin to trickle down from the edge of that hole. First there was a little, then more and more. Strange noises reached him, smothered noises. There was an angry spitting sound and growls and little squeals of pain. No baby kingfishers ever made sounds like that. What could it mean? Peter crept to the very edge of the bank and stared across with eyes that looked as if they were trying to pop right out of his head. He didn't have long to wait. More sand poured out of that hole, and then the tail of Billy Mink followed by Billy's long slim body. Billy Mink was backing out of that hole, and he was doing it in a hurry!

Just then there was a sharp rattle from up the Laughing Brook. Rattles the Kingfisher was bringing home another fish. He reached the sandbank just as Billy Mink was half way out of the hole. Dropping the little fish he had brought, Rattles shot down like a fury and his sharp bill struck Billy Mink, leaving a red mark where it had torn Billy's coat. Billy squealed and then he rolled over and over down that steep sandbank. He didn't stop to come down gracefully. No, sir, he just rolled over and over any way to get to the water.

Billy Mink was a sorry sight. He certainly was. His coat was torn and there were bright red marks on the top of his brown head. Hardly was Billy out of that hole when the spear-like bill of Mrs. Rattles followed, and then she herself, as angry a kingfisher as ever was seen. As Billy dived into the cool, welcome water of the Laughing Brook both Rattles and Mrs. Rattles shot after him. But they were just too late. Then, rattling excitedly, they hovered over the water waiting for Billy to show his head. But he didn't show it. He knew all too well what was waiting for him. He swam under water until he could crawl out for air at a place where the bank overhung the water and he couldn't be seen. There he licked his wounds and then, whimpering softly, made his way down the Laughing Brook toward the Big River, taking the greatest care to keep out of sight. He had lost all appetite for young kingfishers.

As for Rattles and Mrs. Rattles, they flew about excitedly watching for Billy and ready to give him more punishment. At last when they were quite sure that he had left and there was no more danger they flew to a little tree near Peter, and then how their tongues did fly as they talked it all over. As for Peter, his heart fairly bounded with joy. The little kingfishers were safe after all. He, like Billy Mink, had forgotten all about Mrs. Rattles. He might have known that with babies there, she would not be far away. As it happened, she was right in the nest with them, as Billy Mink had found out to his sorrow.

Big Help to Yanks

Johnny Allen, though a first year man with the New York Yankees, is classed as a veteran because of his impressive string of winning games. His right-hand pitching has done considerable toward keeping the Yankees at the top of the American league column. Johnny, once a hotel clerk in Greensboro, N. C., came to New York from Toronto.

Peter watched Mr. and Mrs. Rattles for a few minutes. Then he kicked up his heels and started for the dear Old Brier Patch to tell little Mrs. Peter all about it, and that it really is true that Rattles the Kingfisher lives in a hole in the ground.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY

WITH all the different kinds of foods talked about and recipes for using them in ways that are different, we come to molasses, the good old sweet that comes to us right from the sugar cane. Here is one to serve to youngsters that will be enjoyed:

Vitamin Salad.

Place a leaf or two of crisp lettuce on each salad plate. Place a slice of pineapple on the leaf and fill the center with New Orleans molasses. Cover with a thick slice of orange, top with a slice of apple (or a square), topped with a cherry. Just before serving pour over the following sirup: To one teaspoonful of molasses add the juice of one orange and one-half a lemon. This will serve four salads.

Veal Stuffed Tomatoes.

Take out the seeds from six tomatoes after slicing off the top. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper. Cook two tablespoonfuls of butter with one-half tablespoonful of chopped onion for five minutes. Add one-half cupful of chopped cold veal, one-half cupful of bread crumbs, the tomato pulp, season with salt and pepper. Cook five minutes and fill the tomatoes with this mixture. Place in a buttered pan, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake for 20 minutes.

Tea Ice Cream.

Take one cupful of milk, three egg yolks, one cupful of sugar, a bit of salt, one-half cupful of strong tea infusion, one cupful of thin cream, two cupfuls of heavy cream. Freeze and add two cupfuls of whipped cream, and finish freezing.

FACE THE LIGHT

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

SHE'S set them in the window, Geranium and rose, A window-box of pansies, floss, And ev'rything that grows, Hydrangea, verberna, And even daisies white— And ev'ry one has sought the sun, Has turned to face the light.

I wish we had the wisdom Of flowers on a sill, Would turn away from shadows gray And seek the sunlight still. Though grief is all about us, And trouble hard to bear, I wish that we would turn and see The beauty ev'rywhere.

The rose can teach a lesson, The pansies point the way: Be done with doubt, look up, look out, And seek the dawn of day. Behind you may be shadows, But skies ahead are bright; And, when you grieve, be brave, believe, And turn and face the light.

SEQUOIA FOREST A PEAN OF ANTIQUITY

Has Seen Civilizations Rise and Crash.

It was, possibly, only yesterday by geologic time when the Sequoia forest began its definite existence—300,000,000 years, at a guess. Two hundred million years ago it was well established and had fixed habits much as at present. Passing lightly over 190,000,000 years, 10,000,000 years ago the genus homo perhaps began to take refuge in its branches.

In the days when Moses was a mountain climber, on a portion of the earth's crust very nearly the antipodes of the Sinal peninsula—a region that was not to receive the name of California for some forty centuries—a forest of sequoias stretched their green and glossy fingers into the shimmering western sky. Already for an unimagined period, through summer and winter, cold and heat, seed time and harvest, day and night, it had pressed inch by inch into the firmament; ring by ring it had imperceptibly added to its girth.

Ninevah and Babylon, Rome and Carthage, Tyre and Jerusalem rose and fell. Cyrus and Genghis Khan, Alexander, Julius Caesar and Napoleon conquered the world. Confucius and Buddha, Jesus and Mohammed swayed the realm of the spirit. Solomon and Socrates, Galileo and Darwin, produced the bitter and potent fruit of the thinking mind. Homer and Vergil and Dante and Shakespeare gave to the world of the imagination a local habitation. Pericles and Aspasia, Paolo and Francesca, Lancelot and Guinevere, counted the world well lost for the brief ecstasy of love.

The Sequoia forest, untroubled by the rise and fall of nations, unconscious of the sulphurous depths of passion and woe of the human spirit, unchanged by the cataclysmic changes in the world of human thought, mercifully untouched even by terrestrial cataclysms that overwhelmed many a mountain and plain, scattered its golden pollen in the spring, its ripened cones in the fall; sang its inimitable, dreamy song when the winds passed through it.

Almost within sound of its "hushing," great civilizations came to maturity and sank into the soil—so deep that the youngest, even now, is inarticulate.—Alice Day Pratt in the Atlantic Monthly.

Case of "Some Baby"

The sheriff in a small Indiana town had arrested a woman who was wanted for house breaking in a neighboring city. As there was a handsome reward offered for the guilty party, there was considerable speculation in regard to the possibility of the local officer's "bringing home the bacon." On his return from delivering his prisoner to the city authorities, the sheriff was questioned as to the outcome of his trip.

"Aw, there wasn't nuthin' to it," he explained disgustedly, "I thought I had her dead to rights but blamed if she didn't prove a lullaby."

Report of Illinois Congress P. T. A., Annual Conference

By Minnie C. Nebeker

The Fourth Annual Conference of District 22, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers was held last Friday, September 23rd at the M. E. church in Plainfield. Mesdames W. Lowe, R. Coler, M. Krapp, A. Braun, A. C. Hall, C. S. Nebeker, represented the Mokena P. T. A.

The morning session commenced at 9:45. Mrs. Drew Castle, of Joliet acted as chairman for the day. The first speaker, Mrs. Alvin Hombock, past publicity chairman, spoke on publicity methods. She remarked that a good publicity chairman had to climb a tree and holler. (So don't be alarmed if you see me up a tree hollering.)

The second speaker, Mrs. G. E. Oliver, member state committee, spoke on Parent Education. One of her main remarks was that we should be models for our children, not critics.

The third speaker, Mrs. H. S. Paine, member of State Board, gave a very instructive and helpful talk on laws and how to vote intelligently.

Mrs. Don Pagenta, state chairman was the fourth speaker. She spoke in the interest of the Child Welfare Magazine. She stressed the importance of good literature in the home. How very important and great the need of a subscription to the Child Welfare Magazine was to the parents. Each issue is filled with instructive articles on child raising from the infant to the high school age.

Mrs. F. L. Holch, was the fifth speaker. Her topic was "Parent-Association News". She told how important it was for every Parents-Teachers Association to keep up their reports and research work.

The last speaker of the morning session was Mrs. Henry L. Fleming, state chairman, Budget and Finance. Her address was "The Fundamentals of Parents-Teachers Association work." She said it was wise to make your budget in the beginning of the year and each committee stay within it. That it was best to give one or two worth while affairs a year and have them go over big than to give many small uninteresting entertainments or sales. She remarked that very often in smaller associations the members hesitated in making and seconding motions as in one instance a president asked for a motion and no one responded so she very cleverly asked the vice-president to take the chair and she went in the rear of the audience and put the motion before the assembly.

Luncheon was served at 12:15 in the Community House adjoining the church.

The afternoon session opened at 1:15. Mrs. Walter Mather, president of the Plainfield P. T. A. gave a very gracious welcome. Mrs. Drew Castle responded in the behalf of the District.

A presentation of a "Model Parent-Teachers Meeting" was given by the Joliet Council. It was very cleverly put on.

The last address of the afternoon was "Training for Citizenship" by Mrs. A. R. Williams, first vice-president of Ill. Congress Parents and Teachers. She suggested we must not lower our standards of education by shortening the school terms and lowering teachers wages. To remember that children of today will be the citizens of tomorrow.

After Mrs. A. R. Williams very interesting talk, there was a question box, then roll call of Asso's. The delegate from Wheaton invited the Parents-Teachers Association of District to hold their 1933 conference at Wheaton. The invitation was accepted which ended the fourth annual conference.

ORLAND

The village board meeting held on Monday night was very interesting. Alderman Harold Kinney objected to the manner in which the S. W. highway is routed on Greenland avenue, for if a future grade separation would be built it would damage his property he contended. After hearing the matter discussed in detail, the board held the matter over for some other meeting.

The blanket accident insurance policy covering the 25 members of the fire department was accepted. J. F. Schmadeke is the local representative for the insurance company.

The matter of cutting weeds and grass along the village streets was also acted on as also was the matter of hauling the rubbish of the village.

The chief and members of the Orland Fire Department and their families attended a picnic given by the Crown Point, Indiana fire department at the fair grounds in that city last Sunday. On the return trip the chief John Helenhouse had a narrow escape from a serious accident when a drunken driver crashed into his car. Luckily no serious damage was done.

Francis Glahn, Sr., is recovering from the effects of a recent stroke. Dr. W. Schussler is expected home this week from a fishing trip to Wisconsin.

Old-fashioned Zinnias seem to me Like certain patient friends and true, Who seek no words of flattery Nor any praise for what they do, But are the first when sorrows fall With offerings of help to call.

Some friendships and some flowers appear Too pale and delicate to last Who loves them dwells in constant fear Of thoughtless word or icy blast The least contrary wind may end The fragile bloom or fragile friend

But Zinnias have a sturdier way, No pampering from friends they ask; Wherever planted they will stay, And blithely go about their task. Whatever winds or storm descend, On Zinnias you can depend.

TRIANGLE TALKIES

This is the Triangle news reporter again with a little news about a few of our honorable members.

Saw Al M. up at New Lenox Saturday night, but he didn't bring his girl with him. Am anxious to see her, cuz I've heard so much about her; however he doesn't seem to want to bring her around. How about giving us a look in, Al?

Heard that Dorothy is coming home for the week end as her B. F. has a birthday Sunday. Am I right or not?

Basketball will be starting soon folks. The girls head their first meeting last week. So it won't be long now.

Don't forget our next regular business meeting is next Monday, Oct. 3rd. Let's see if all our members can't be present. We don't want to drop any of you on account of absences. And say, if any young folks in Tinley who aren't members would like to join our club, just say the word to anyone of us. You know we cut our dues from 25c to 15c a month. Now don't all rush at once.
